About the Filmmakers

Starring, co-written and produced by Detroit native Jonathan Stanley ("Batman V Superman"), MISLED is a gritty story about growing up on the streets of Detroit, based largely on Stanley's life, including the challenges after his dropping out of high school, and working as a male stripper. The film also stars Sammy Sheik ("American Sniper," "Lone Survivor,"), Natalie Avital ("Criminal Minds"), and Detroit's Matt Lockwood ("Answer This"). MISLED is the feature directorial debut of Scott Baldyga (Los Angeles), who also co-wrote, produced, and composed for the film.

MISLED held its World Premiere at the Gasparilla International Film Festival in Tampa Bay, Florida, In March, 2014. Soon after, the Detroit Music Awards gave MISLED a "Special Recognition for Soundtrack" – the first one ever awarded in DMA history.

A passion project of Stanley's, MISLED depicts many of the tribulations he faced growing up as it tells the story of two Detroit brothers trying to improve their lives, one of whom is involved in the drug world (Bobby) while the other (Jason), played by Stanley, turns to stripping and prostitution. Stanley began writing the script after connecting with executive producer John Blackwell, a fan of his performance in the award winning indie film “This Narrow Place,” who agreed to finance the film.

MISLED was filmed in late 2012-2013 mostly in the city of Detroit, as well as at locations in Hamtramck, Plymouth and Dearborn. It was filmed as part of the Michigan Film Incentive Program, and 95% of its crew was from metro Detroit. Postproduction was completed in Los Angeles in February 2014. While comparisons have been made to actor Channing Tatum’s experiences in the film “Magic Mike,” MISLED shows the darker, seedier side of male stripping against the cold inner city Detroit backdrop.
